

Application for Admission to
The Drexel/UPenn IGERT in Nanoscale Science and Engineering

Drexel University & University of Pennsylvania

Funded by the National Science Foundation

Description: Students interested in the IGERT training program should apply to one of the participating departmental Ph.D. programs and submit this form to the IGERT Program Coordinator. Students are strongly encouraged to contact one of the participating faculty members before applying. For full details see <http://nano.materials.drexel.edu/IGERT.html>.

Funding: IGERT Fellows are guaranteed funding for the course of their Ph.D. study; the first year of study is funded by the IGERT grant (which includes a stipend of $30,000 and full tuition coverage), and later years are funded either by the IGERT grant or by other grants or fellowships. (For further details, contact the IGERT Program Coordinator.) IGERT Fellows are encouraged to seek external national fellowship opportunities, such as the National Science Foundation Graduate Research Fellowship Program or the National Defense Science and Engineering Graduate Fellowship Program (NDSEG).

Application checklist:

- Personal and Demographic Information Form
- Transcripts (currently enrolled students: photocopies or electronic copies are acceptable)
- Three letters of recommendation
- Personal statement: one page on your interest in interdisciplinary nanoscale science and engineering research
